

Welcome to the Wildflower Reserve of Raccoon Creek State Park

The Wildflower Reserve serves as the focal point for environmental education and interpretive programs at Raccoon Creek State Park. Programs on a wide range of topics are presented to the public, schools and organized groups.

The 314-acre tract, originally purchased in 1962 by the Western Pennsylvania Conservancy, contains one of the most biodiverse and unique stands of wildflowers in Pennsylvania. Over 700 species of flowering plants can be found along the five miles of trails, which lead the visitor through a variety of habitats from oak-hickory forest to pine plantations, and from meadows to floodplain forest. Wildflowers can be found throughout the growing season with peak blooms in late April through early May and August through early September.

Trail Considerations

For the future use and protection of this unique area, please follow these rules:

Picking or collecting of plants is prohibited.

Trails are for hiking only. No bikes, horses or motor vehicles are permitted.

Smoking on the trails or in the Interpretive Center is prohibited.

Pets are not permitted on the trails or in the Interpretive Center.
